Incident Type	Outbound Denied Connection - Potential C2 or Data Exfiltration Attempt. Query Context: show me the last 20mins deny logs in pdf Source IP: 10.100.50.52 Destination IP and Port: 40.74.79.222 : 443

2. Incident Evidence and Detail:

Analysis of the last 20 minutes of denied logs reveals a single high-severity outbound connection attempt from an internal host (10.100.50.52) to an external IP address (40.74.79.222) on port 443. The connection was blocked by network security controls, indicating a potential attempt by a compromised internal system to establish command-and-control (C2) communication or exfiltrate data. The use of port 443, commonly associated with legitimate HTTPS traffic, suggests an attempt to blend malicious activity with normal network behavior. No additional denied attempts were observed, which may indicate a targeted or low-volume attack vector.

Threat Intel:

Outbound denied connections to external IPs on port 443 are frequently associated with malware attempting to establish C2 channels or exfiltrate data while evading detection by mimicking legitimate traffic. The external IP (40.74.79.222) has not been flagged in public threat intelligence feeds at the time of this report, but its association with a denied high-severity event warrants further investigation for potential zero-day or targeted threats.

5. Strategic Recommendations & Action Plan

DENY LOGS (Blocked Traffic)

- o Validate Legitimate Traffic: Review denied IPs to ensure no business apps are blocked.
- o Tune Firewall Policies: Optimize overly strict rules that may cause drops.
- o Detect Suspicious Patterns: Analyze repeated deny attempts for scanning behavior.
